SODALITY MEETS IN OPEN FORUM

Keating, McCafferty, Gibson
And Ducey Address
Sodalists

LARGE GROUPS HEAR OF CATHOLIC ACTION

With the initial meeting of the Open Forum, last evening, sponsored by the B. V. M. Sodality, that organization inaugurated a most laudable project,—the study and practice of Catholic Action.

According to the plans of the Reverend Moderator, the sodality members assembled in the College auditorium. Bernard McCafferty, '32, president of the Sodality, presided. He thanked the members for their interest in attending the meeting, and discussed the ways in which the Sodality and Catholic Action can help modern Catholic youth to be living examples of Catholicity.

McCafferty then introduced as the first speaker, Gardner S. Gibson, '33. Gibson was fortunate in having attended the summer school for Catholic Action, which was held in St. Louis this past summer. His experience and study at the summer school has been a great aid to the Sodality in presenting its own endeavors in the field of Catholic Action. Gibson spoke chiefly on the work and purpose of the Sodality, and presented a short history of the organization. He will speak at a future meeting concerning his activities at the summer school for Catholic Action.

Anthony Keating, '32, a consultant of the sodality, read a paper on the subject of Catholic Action. He explained clearly its purpose and merits, and pointed out the important position of such action in our everyday Catholic lives.

Junior Promenade Short Time Away

All Plans in Readiness; Final
Success of Affair Depends on Individual

With the Junior Prom scarcely more than two weeks off, it would not be amiss to review those outstanding features which promise to make it a memorable event. In a previous issue Lew Conrad and his orchestra were served their well-merited measure of praise. Not only is his music in accord with the lilting and minuet-like romanticism of the time but it has proved itself fully capable of fulfilling the most extravagant demands. If the leader and his musicians do not succeed in acting as potential drawing-cards the fault can certainly be said to lie "not in the stars, but in the individuals" that they fail to profit by the apparent advantages.

Previous issues have also brought out the fact that plans for decorations and the like are unequalled by anything in the past. In short, everything is in readiness and what remains now is but for Holy Cross men and others to enjoy the perennial promenade.

Despite all that may be said in justification of an opposite position it is certainly something of a moral duty to school and to self to support the standard bearers of this traditional celebration. However, aside from any sense of moral duty, men in the past have vigorously declared themselves against any attitude of laissez-faire in the matter of the Prom. From experience they warn no man who can possibly help it, to miss the occasion.

At any rate the date is the fifth of February and the scene is the Bancroft. The dramatic personae alone remains doubtful.

Dr. Paulding Acts In Fenwick Hall

Scenes From "A School for Scandal" Presented to Students

ACTOR COMPARES THE SCHOOLS OF DRAMA

Doctor Frederick Paulding paid his annual visit to the Holy Cross stage last Thursday and before a vast throng, delivered several of the great scenes from Richard Brinsley Sheridan's masterpiece, a comedy of manners, universally known as "A School for Scandal." Doctor Paulding has achieved fame, as both an actor and original playwright. Having appeared at Holy Cross on numerous occasions his coming was awaited anxiously and he lived up exactly to expectations.

Dean Attends Col- lege Conference

Senator Walsh to Speak

The eighteenth annual meeting of the Association of American Colleges will be held Jan. 21 and 22 at Cincinnati, Ohio. Rev. Francis J. Dolan, S.J., Dean, will represent Holy Cross at the meeting. Senator David I. Walsh, '93, will speak at one of the sessions.

One of the subjects that will come up for discussion will be "The Effects of the Depression on Colleges." The Liberal Arts College Bulletin reports in the December issue returns from 230 colleges on their financial condition. In most cases the situation is serious. In some cases the situation is desperate. Undoubtedly the report of B. Warren Brown, executive secretary of the Liberal Arts College Movement published in the Bulletin, on the effects of the depression on the colleges will furnish plenty of matter for discussion at the meeting. "Colleges," says Mr. Brown, "face one of the worst economic depressions in the history of the country. It is time for plain speaking and 'brass tacks.' College resources must be increased and college expenditures adjusted to meet reduced income."

Continuing in his report, Mr. Brown says, "When banks, business houses, and railroads are being forced into mergers, how can the weaker colleges alone stand out against well defined educational and financial pressure? Prompt and fearless cooperation will insure the permanence of Christian colleges at the most strategic points in each field. If the depression lasts long enough, we may be forced to do the intelligent and Christian thing even against our wills."

Aims Of Aviation Club Explained

Newest Society at Holy Cross Elects Officers at First Meeting

What is the Aviation Club? Due to the fact that this organization has only recently made its debut here on the Hill, the student body in general is ignorant of its full purpose and function. Primarily, it has as its purpose the promotion of interest in the aviation industry. As an added feature, the club will enable those members who desire actual flying instruction to obtain this instruction at reduced rates.

Registration of club members and election of officers was held in Fenwick Hall, Thursday, January 14. At this meeting, attended by thirty-five interested students, Anthony V. Griseto, '35, was elected president. Griseto is indeed qualified for the position as he has been fortunate in having received flying instruction at the Chicago and Ravenswood flying clubs. He has a total record of thirty-three hours in the air to his credit. As vice-president, the members selected John F. Sheehan, '35. Henry A. Hayward, '35, was the choice for secretary, and Arthur Dobson, '34, for treasurer. Due credit must be given to Nicholas J. LaPenna, '35, John F. Sheehan, '35, and John R. Nyhoff, '35, for organizing and creating interest in the project.

Mr. Charles Cowan and Mr. J. Heiser, associates of the Framingham Flying Service, attended the meeting and spoke on the advisability and value of such an organization. Mr. Heiser pointed out that there was a great need for executives in the aviation industry. He said in part, "It is evident that aviation is a growing industry,—indications point that it

BURKE SENIOR TOASTMASTER

Reynolds and Dillon Are Student Speakers at Senior Banquet

WALTER GREEN AGAIN TO BE CLASS ODIST

Fortified with the scintillating wit of one Andrew J. Burke, toastmaster par excellence, the senior class flocks to the Bancroft tonight, there to be entertained by the faculty in the first of the banquets given to the undergraduates of the various classes this year.

Joseph Reynolds, senior president, is slated to open the oratorical phase of the program with a short address to his classmates. Mr. J. Leo O'Gorman, professor to seniors in Education, will speak as faculty representative; and Robert E. Dillon, editor of The Tomahawk, will act in the same capacity for the student body.

A special treat is in store for all, when Walter Greene, who has so often appeared to advantage in the pages of the Purple, reads the class ode. Greene also served as poet at the banquet that was held last year.

The Purple Crusaders will keep approximately four hundred feet tapping the floor in time to their rhythmic tunes. In addition to the music of the orchestra, the well-known trio of Caulfield, Reynolds, and Howe will contribute a few of their own favorite selections. And with the presence of the popular Mr. J. Edward Bouvier, there is little likelihood of any dragging moments.

As the Holy Cross Independents are meeting the B. C. club on the basketball court at St. John's gym, it is expected that many of the seniors will attend the game after the conclusion of the banquet. Since the dinner is scheduled for six o'clock, it will probably be over in ample time for the game.

IN THE NEWS

John M. Ducey, '32

Americans very often take railroad efficiency and safety for granted, like the purity of their drinking water, or the skill of the family doctor. If an accident happens, we grow properly indignant. —It may give some idea of the difficulty of maintaining our high standard of railroad transportation, to look at recent happenings in Russia. Accidents are frequent, but last week's is more horrible than usual; into a standing passenger train, filled with commuters on their way to Moscow, another suburban train crashed its way from behind, ploughing through almost every one of its wooden cars, killing and maiming. Spectators and a few unhurt passengers hauled the wounded from the wreckage, fearing fire; unfortunately, many were laid on the parallel track where, a moment later, a freight train tore around the bend. The wounded could scream; they could not move. —Recently the Soviets sentenced to death four railroad men guilty of criminal negligence in an accident of this sort, though on a much less impressive scale: it appears that killing four men is not enough to raise Soviet railroading morale. Moscow can resort to one of three tried and true Communist methods: shoot forty people instead of four; conduct a tremendous advertising campaign, with attractive posters, inspiring railroad men to "Safety First"; or offer cash prizes to the best workmen, coal-heaving to the others.

The motor industry has had much publicity this week, largely timed to coincide with the 32nd annual New York Automobile Show. The "Saturday Evening Post," beneficiary of much motor advertising, filled many pages of newspapers shouting that buying of motorcars was the surest way to end Depression; the motor industry, gargantuan monster, uses 15% of our annual steel, aluminum and copper production, over 80% of our gasoline sold and rubber manufactured; ships tons of freight over railroads, employs millions, is owned by thousands of stockholders, etc. Commercial Credit Company advertised that economically-minded people should compare the high values, low prices of the new cars with the mounting repair bills and growing inefficiency of "the old bus"; buy a new car on Commercial Credit terms and save money. Other companies boomed autos; and of course Auburn boomed its 12-cylinder, 160 horsepower car, its "dual ratio" that gives you six forward speeds; Buick its "wizard control" that almost eliminates clutching; Chrysler its "floating power" to reduce vibration; Studebaker its new, inexpensive Rockne six. The trend toward lower, more European bodies, streamlining and gay colors is more pronounced than ever; fortunately for the motorist, the downward revision of prices is even more startling.

ACOLYTES ATTEND TALK ON MISSIONS

At the last meeting of the Sanctuary Society in Fenwick Hall, "Unpublished Doings in the Philippines," was the subject of an informal treatment by Father Shanahan of the inspiring progress which Jesuits are making in a desolate land where culture is almost entirely absent. Having spent his regency in this district and having been among the second band to arrive there, he was well qualified to talk upon such a topic.

After an interesting prelude, he spoke of the beginning of a Sanctuary Society among the Filipinos, novel at least in its minor details. Peculiar difficulties, alien to us, were pointed out, which made it clear under what conditions the newly arrived American Jesuit missionaries had to labor.

Succeeding the Spanish Fathers, who for the preceding three hundred years had been in charge, these Jesuits had to study discriminately the temperament of the natives in all respects. The military atmosphere of the Ataneo proved to be of such great assistance in the organization of a Sanctuary Society that within a few years it was carrying on admirably, the pride not only of the Jesuits but also of the Filipinos.

Philomath Society Hears Fr. Sullivan

Dean of Philosophy Advocates Value of Organized Debating

Last Thursday evening the Philomath Debating Society had the pleasure of being host to Rev. Joseph F. Sullivan, S.J., Dean of Philosophy and Senior Counselor, who addressed the club and two hundred guests of the Philomath members.

The large number of those present was without doubt due to Father Sullivan's well deserved reputation for interesting addresses. All who attended the meeting will vouch for the statement that the speech presented at that time was no contradiction of his reputation.

Father Sullivan, after commenting favorably on the record attendance, thanked the club's president, J. Andrew Burke, '32, for the opportunity to mention a few points which he thought would be of value to the students. The first of the remarks which were presented to the interested listeners had to do with student membership in debating societies. Insisting that the importance of this extra-curricular activity could not be overemphasized, Father Sullivan said that "Knowledge is of much less value when a man is unable to make that knowledge known. In later life a man is going to be faced with the necessity of selling himself and it can only be done successfully through the medium of oral expression. Regardless of the field which we will enter after we leave college we will always find an ability to speak, of paramount importance."

Continuing in his address Father Sullivan mentioned the great opportunities that a man has to be a fine influence in the lives of others. He illustrated this point by an example of a Holy Cross graduate who recently met his death, but who in his short life (for he was of a recent class) was a great influence for good among those who knew him. This point was summed up in the complimentary words of a friend: "He was a good sport, a clean fellow and a brave man." Holding this up as praise well worthy of being gained, he concluded his second topic.

With a natural transition Father Sullivan came to speak very sincerely on the matter of unjust laws and unethical legislation, and the chance that we will have to combat such measures if we can express ourselves or if we are influences for good. The matter of legislation advocating birth control was briefly mentioned in the development of this topic. The speaker bemoaned the fact that measures are being continually brought to the legislative assemblies of this country, which are decidedly unethical and conducive to the degradation of society.

At the close of the speech Father offered to answer any questions that the audience might wish to ask, but as there were none forthcoming he left amidst the enthusiastic applause of the large number who had listened so attentively.

Because of the success of this type of meeting the Philomath intends to have another similar one later in the year.

On Sweaters and Letters

During the past few weeks there has been a noticeable increase in the number of freshmen who persist in flaunting high school or prep school letters on their sweaters while strolling about the campus or the city. We restrict the class committing this collegiate crime to the first year men because, while not knowing them personally, we feel that only those fresh from preparatory school adulation could so exhibit obvious indications of former prowess before an undergraduate body, who feel admiration for their own athletes only.

The error lies not in the actual wearing of the letter, but in the motive behind it. The wearers are quite pointedly calling attention to the fact that they at one time were in a position of prominence and that they expect due praise and admiration from their fellow-students at college although that prominence was in no way connected with Holy Cross. In that lies the distinction between them and varsity men with an HC.

Surely no former officer in the late war would dream of wearing his insignia in the world of business. And why? Because whatever eminence he might have attained in military service does not pertain to his present status. His associates do not care particularly who or what he was in other lines; they want to know what his qualifications are for superiority in his connections with them.

Democratic feeling is strong at Holy Cross and those self-styled aristocrats, whether in the athletic or the social class, are soon ostracized by their fellows. Men who build such foundations of snobbery in freshman year are inevitably overwhelmed by public resentment long before they reach the dignity of senior year. And men who insist upon imposing on others signs of past glory are but emphasizing their inability to secure further and more suitable honor among those with whom they live. We suggest that those to whom this article refers follow the dictates of good taste and propriety of college spirit by either removing the letters or wearing the sweaters inside out. After all, our allegiance now is to our college, not to our prep or high school.

The Why of Class Banquets

With the banquet to the senior class this evening begins the first of the annual banquets tendered to each class by the faculty. Each class, beginning with the highest and continuing down to the freshman in turn, has a night set aside in which its members are feted by those who teach them. This intermingling of students and faculty is truly characteristic of Holy Cross, whose democratic tendencies are quite well known.

It is a custom, in this generation, among our fellow American colleges to draw an acute distinction between those teaching and those taught. Not only is the faculty divorced from the student body when classes are over, but the bond between the teacher and the pupil even during class hours is very weak, if it exists at all. The advantages of this mode of procedure, as claimed by its supporters, is that it stimulates individual effort and teaches the student to rely upon himself. This is true, perhaps, if the student knows where to start, but in this age, when the student entering college is comparatively young, how many of them know their own minds, and if they do, how many of them know how to proceed so that they may develop their minds in the best way possible? We do not detract in the least from our associates in the field of higher education, but we do say that advice and guidance from those who are our seniors in age, experience, and knowledge, is the greatest help in developing ourselves in the best possible manner, according to our talents.

General Communions

On Thursday morning, the student body will offer a General Communion for the repose of the soul of Judge James B. Carroll, '78, who died recently.

On Friday morning a General Communion will be offered for the repose of the soul of Rev. George L. Coyle, S.J., former professor of chemistry at the college.

Seniors are requested to wear their gowns on both occasions.

Cross Campus

Kennedy, Mathias, Kennedy, '34

To one of our seniors goes the plush-bound, fireproof cigarette lighter for his enviable achievement of actually being an "honorary" chairman of one of the many undergraduate club dances. In the dance held in the farthest north-eastern state in the country, this spasmodic columnist held the honor of chairmanship of the hop. Much to the disappointment of the assembled populace and of three fair ones who expected to accompany the dashing caballero on that evening (one of whom went so far as to select her best calico from the town store for the occasion). Mac vociferously asserted his masculine nature by dissenting loudly against any condescension on his part in participation in the terpsichorean art and on the night of the dance went elsewhere. Congratulations, Bob! That's being independent.

Now that the rifle team has enjoyed such a successful season (just when is the season for a rifle team, anyhow? Ask "Speedy," '32) by not losing a single match and without firing a shot, we turn our attention to the aviation club which appears to be in season. Authorities predict that this organization will enjoy quite as successful a year as the rifle club.

Paulding Acts In Fenwick

Burke Welcomes Paulding

J. Andrew Burke, '32, welcomed Doctor Paulding to Holy Cross, acting in place of Joseph Reynolds, the senior class president, who was unavoidably detained. He stressed Holy Cross' efforts to maintain culture among her students. He then introduced Doctor Paulding.

After expressing appreciation for his hearty reception, Doctor Paulding spoke on the value of the classic drama, in comparison to the light and irreverent plays that sweep Broadway. Then after a brief outline of the School for Scandal, he launched into giving an interpretation of the scandal mongers, Lady Sneerwell, Crabtree and the other gossips. After this he gave the leading scenes from the play in an earnest and sincere manner. His portrayal of old men, Sir Peter, Sir Oliver and Crabtree, were excellent, whereas his interpretations of women and young men were comparatively only fair.

Paulding Interprets Scenes

However, Doctor Paulding pointed out the beauty of the lines of the play after each rendition. Of the whole presentation, the quarrel scene between Lady Teazle and Sir Peter was both well acted and exceptional. His portrayal of Sir Peter in this scene was tremendously real.

Excerpts from his observations on modern plays and classical dramas were:

"There is a strong undercurrent of sincerity, ethics and charity running through the play like a vein of gold. You will find brilliancy and fine quality in the dramas of the past."

"Human nature does not change. Warm sincerity of glowing words are found in the immortal works of the past and truth (not scandal) is set in the gold of an honest laugh which will abide forever."

INTERCOLLEGIATE HOUR

By James G. McDevitt, '32

It's easy to get a date at Wisconsin. Social chairmen in both girls and men's dorms pair the men and co-eds off for parties. On specified occasions half the men entertain half the co-eds at dinner in the men's dormitory, while the other co-eds do the same for the rest of the men, in their dorm.

Our nomination for the scholastic hall of fame goes to a co-ed studying (?) at Ann Arbor. She happened to gain recognition for her action in pulling down the shades during a class there recently. When questioned by the prof as to the motive for her action, she replied, "I can't sleep with the sun in my eyes!"

No one officially flunked anything for a brief interval at the University of Omaha. The registrar's office there ran out of notification blanks for exam failures, and everyone was happy for a while. Then, because of the insistent demands of the faculty, more blanks had to be ordered, and they expect them to arrive in time for the mid-years. Lots of us expect them, too!

Fordham has become air-minded, and boasts of three solo-flight representatives. Early one morning, not long ago, three officers of the "Ram" R. O. T. C. went a-cantering in the park, for their first ride in a newly formed riding club. About half an hour later the three horses returned to the stables, unaccompanied. Joe could join that club too!

Before the various professors throughout the country learn how much of their subject we have forgotten, we will remind them that they too have their forgetful spells. For instance, a prof at Franklin and Marshall reported his car as stolen one day, only to find upon his return home that he had walked to school that day. And at the University of Missouri, G. R. Edwards walked into class, carelessly placed his cigarette on the hatrack, and tossed his derby out the window.

We've heard that some quaint customs can be very interesting; now we believe it. The one that caused our decision is this: at Cedar Crest, a girl's school near Bethlehem, Pa., in order to get the girls to go to bed, and to send the Lehigh men home, they turn out the lights in the parlors. As yet there have been no petitions made in favor of abolishing the rule.

The Rhode Island "Beacon" recently published the remedy for the depression, advanced by Bruce Barton. His proposition is that we should all quit work, go to bed and sleep it off. That sleeping process only brings depression here, though—when we find that we weren't overlooked after all and we get our pretty, sky-blue slip.

SODALISTS SPEAK IN OPEN FORUM

The final speaker was John Ducey, '32, who discussed Catholic Literature. He deplored the fact that so many of our Catholic students are too prone to disregard Catholic Literature, and are even ignorant of the wide range of excellent books and other literary articles by Catholic authors. His remarks were supplemented by those of the Reverend Moderator, Father Fair, S.J., who spoke briefly but forcibly on the evil influences of some of the modern magazines. He not only advised, but emphasized that it was the duty of the sodalists to boycott such reading matter as was of a suggestive nature, as none of it can be read with impunity.

will supplant the railroad. Hence it is necessary to have men with foresight and ability." He described the organization of similar aviation clubs at Brown, Boston College, Harvard, and other leading colleges.

The club, which will be officially known as the "H.C.F.C." desires to enlarge its membership, and urges anyone who is in the least interested to attend future meetings. Students are reminded that members of this organization may obtain actual instruction at the Framingham Flying Field, which has at its disposal twelve planes and many competent instructors.

De Pro Chosen Toastmaster

Plans for the annual junior banquet which is given by the faculty as an expression of the good-feeling which exists between student and professor have been completed by George B. Moran, president of the junior class. The banquet will be held in February at the Bancroft Hotel.

Louis DePro has been selected as toastmaster, and those who remember his role in the reception to the freshmen last year, will agree that he is capably talented for the position. J. Leo O'Gorman, Jr., and Blaise Scavullo have been chosen as student speakers for the evening. A class ode, by Shawn Sheehan, will also be heard that night. The faculty speaker for the occasion has not been announced as yet.

SCIENTIFIC CLUB PLANS SEASON

The officers of the Scientific Society have been appointed for the present year. They are Cyril A. Goyette, '32, president; James L. Gallagher, '32, vice-president; Lee F. Dante, '33, secretary; and Patrick J. Roche, '33, treasurer.

This year each member of the club is to write a special paper dealing with a particular subject of science. The object of these papers is to have the members able to present clearly, in teachable form, a special scientific subject.

Another thesis entitled "Friction" has been completed by John J. Cutroneo, '33. The two kinds of friction—static friction in reference to two bodies at rest and kinetic friction in reference to bodies in motion—are explained at length.

100 STUDENTS PRESENT AT AQUINAS CIRCLE

Last Wednesday night approximately one hundred senior philosophy students attended the first formal meeting of the Aquinas Circle. The purpose of this society, as previously explained in these columns, is to foster and encourage a warm interest in the study of philosophy and to provide the opportunity to discuss many topics relative to this subject, which because of lack of time are necessarily omitted in class.

Junior Class Meeting

Juniors are called to meet in the Auditorium on Friday afternoon. The purpose is the selection of candidates for the Editorship of the Purple Patcher. Aspirants for the position of business manager will also be mentioned. As this matter concerns each individual intimately all are urged to attend.

REV. GEORGE L. COYLE, S.J.

Rev. George L. Coyle, former professor at Holy Cross and one of the most noted chemists in the United States, died last Saturday afternoon in the rectory of the Church of St. Ignatius Loyola after collapsing from a heart attack.

Father Coyle was born in Philadelphia in 1869 and entered the Society of Jesus in 1887. As a scholastic he taught at Holy Cross in 1890 and 1891, and returned as a priest to teach here from 1907 to 1923. During the latter part of his teaching period here, he was head of the chemistry department. Since his departure from here, Father Coyle has headed the chemistry department at Georgetown University.

For the past few years, he devoted much of his time in raising a fund to found a school of chemical research at Georgetown. Father Coyle held the office of Vice-President of the American Chemical Association, and is the author of numerous books and treatises on chemistry.

SWIMMING

With the date for the long-awaited inter-class swimming meet set back a week to Thursday, Feb. 11, prospective contestants will have an extra period in which to prepare for the competition. Although it is impossible for the Student Athletic Council to arrange a pool for practice, it is expected that the mermen will be able to make use of the pools in the city while getting in trim for the event.

In all probability, the meet will be held at the Boys' Club after 9 o'clock on the date specified. A tentative program has been arranged which includes: fancy dive, 200-yard class relay, 100-yard free-style, 100-yard breast-stroke, 100-yard back-stroke, 50-yard free-style, and 220-yard free-style.

Each class will have a relay team to uphold its honor in the aquatic line. Entries are coming in large numbers and all who contemplate appearing in the meet are urged to register soon, so that the approximate size of the event can be estimated. A list of class representatives will be posted on the Intra-mural Board this week.

BASKETBALL

Top Loyola asserted its supremacy in League B by rising up to tack the first defeat on the powerful dormitory combine in the feature contest of a three game bill at St. John's Gym, Saturday, 30-24. The impressive victory of the Gold Coast hoopsters enables them to retain the leadership of League B, while Beaven III reigns supreme in League A.

Exactly 43 games have now been played in the two leagues and the coming strifes will be mainly between quintets from different leagues. This will facilitate the selection of a champion inter-corridor aggregation, besides giving the powers that be an opportunity to get a line on the best performers so that they can be chosen for the inter-class fives.

With the addition of the two new courts, as well as the use of St. John's Gym on Saturday afternoons, the schedule is going along very well and is far ahead of the competition at this juncture last year. There are days, of course, when it is difficult to hold contests due to the fact that the teams are not available. On other days, when several quintets are ready for play, the enlarged facilities make it possible to accommodate eight teams at once.
